Romans

Roman Britain was a province of the Roman Empire from 43 to 409. Before the invasions, the tribes of Britain had already established cultural and economic links with continental Europe, but the Roman invaders introduced new developments in agriculture, urbanisation, industry, and architecture. After the initial rebellions of Caratacus and Boudicca, the Romans controlled the lands south of Hadrian's Wall in relative peace & a distinctively Romano British culture developed. AD 410 was the end of Roman rule in Britain. Roman officials departed. Over the next 150 years, most of the Roman cities fell into ruins, nevertheless, the legacy of Roman rule was felt for many centuries

How did the Romans change Religion?

Constantine was the first Roman emperor to allow Christians to worship. He later became a Christian himself.

How did the Romans change towns?

The Romans built walls around many of their towns. Some are even standing today, like this one in Colchester.

Julius Caesar was a famous Roman leader. He won many battles for Rome and helped the Roman Empire grow. He was only leader of the Roman Empire for a year before he was assassinated by political enemies.

The empire's frontiers expanded all the way to Britain and the Arabian Peninsula. The Romans built roads, bridges, and aqueducts, or water pipes, throughout their vast empire. They also brought their laws to conquered lands.

Queen Boudicca ruled over the Iceni, a tribe of ancient Great Britain. As a warrior queen, she led a rebellion against Britain's Roman rulers but was ultimately unable to defeat them.
